YIGIT ÖZEN
PAINTINGS
2021

ON THE WORK

In Yiğit Özen's paintings, being together evokes disconnection as much as belonging. The figures continue what they are doing, though their attention seems to be elsewhere; a sense of being somewhere without feeling present runs through these scenes. Bodies, objects and spaces merge through colour. Sometimes shaped by traces of art history or popular culture, sometimes by references to his own life, and sometimes by spontaneous invention, this world brings seriousness and absurdity together. His architectural background is felt in the composition of simplified, linear spaces. Colour carries the psychological weight of these relationships; the surface holds forms that have shifted during painting alongside rough brushstrokes and subtle transitions.

After two years working mainly with photography, Özen moved to Milan in 2018 and began painting. Between 2018 and 2020, he produced around 50 paintings on canvas and more than 100 works on paper and cardboard. He maintained a regular studio practice until the pandemic. When it began, he was in Istanbul, while his studio and paintings remained in Milan.

During this period, his work shifted towards digital production. Combined with his architectural training, these explorations formed the basis of decentralize design and his digital art practice. Around 1,000 digital works made between 2020 and 2025 can be viewed at [de-centralize.com]. During his break from painting on canvas, he made one commissioned painting in 2023. He also co-founded and co-runs Virtually Ever After, an architect-led creative studio based in Luxembourg. In 2026, he resumed a regular painting practice in Luxembourg.
